Description

Johnson Elementary is a magnet school for Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics (STEM) and a NASA Explorer School. Centrally located in the residential working class community of Emerald Hills and built in 1957, the main building consists of 14 permanent classrooms. Fifteen portables accommodate continued growth. Prop MM funds and the Magnet School Assistance Program grant upgraded our facilities, technology infrastructure, science and computer laboratories.

We provide a stimulating and rigorous curriculum to ensure grade level proficiency. Our high expectations foster strong academic excellence. Addressing the needs of the whole child is critical. Our teaching reflects this belief, while strengthening the understanding of STEM. This year a student team will investigate lunar habitats, present their results to NASA staff and participate in the NASA Design Challenge in Houston, Texas.

Steeped in a tradition of high expectations, achievement and perseverance, staff members have spent an average of 13 years at Johnson. We demand a high level of learning for our students and ourselves. Before innovative teaching can take place in the classroom, innovative learning must take place among the staff. With this understanding, we enhance traditional training with partnerships that support learning.

Diversity is highly valued, respected and demonstrated throughout our interactions, curriculum, activities, and school-wide programs. Johnson is a place where children feel safe, loved and valued. Our students express pride in their school, teachers, and more importantly, in themselves. That is the legacy of the Johnson Magnet School for STEM.
