Clairemont High students leave their mark on new library

SAN DIEGO – Students at Clairemont High School recently took part in a time-honored construction tradition: signing the steel beams of their new library building. All students had the opportunity to sign one of the two structural beams that will become part of the new library building at the school, which is funded by Proposition MM. Proposition MM is the $1.51 billion bond measure that funds modernization of 165 existing schools and construction of 16 new and rebuilt schools.

Other Proposition MM upgrades at Clairemont High School include improved access for the physically disabled, upgraded science classrooms and labs, technology upgrades for Internet access, a lunch court shelter and interior and exterior painting, as well as repairs/replacement of carpet, ceiling tiles, roofing, paving and heating and ventilation systems.
